Missing Something? The SCPD May Have It!

The State College Police Department has a new tool to help people locate items they may have lost in the area. Introducing, a new section on the State College Police Department's Pinterest page for Lost and Found.

Many times keys, cell phones, glasses and other items are turned into the police. Cell phones owners are a little easier to locate and typically are returned promptly. Sets of keys, many with keyless entry devices, are a bit trickier. Sometimes keys contain store loyalty cards so we are able to contact the rightful owner. The Lost and Found board will now allow pictures to be displayed of items that are turned in.

We encourage residents, students and visitors to turn found items into the police department. Items are logged and kept safe for 30 days. We do receive some valuables that may require specific identification and may not be pictured. If you believe such an item may belong to you, please call 814-234-7150 or visit our station at 243 S. Allen Street, Monday through Friday 8-5 P.M.

The State College Police Department has been utilizing social media to better serve the residents and visitors of Happy Valley. Currently, they have 5,600 twitter followers that receive updates on traffic patterns, vehicles crashes and road closures, identification of suspects and numerous community events.
